

About Súnas

Súnas is a fiery four-piece Celtic band featuring multi-instrumentalists and exquisite four-part vocal harmonies. They play a unique and unforgettable blend of original, contemporary and traditional tunes and songs.

In addition to performing at many popular venues around Queensland regularly and touring, Súnas has headlined the Cygnet, Tamar Valley and Fleadh Ceol Folk Festivals interstate and were chosen to perform their own music at this year's Woodford Festival opening ceremony. They have also appeared at the National, Wintermoon and Port Fairy Folk Festivals, Fête de la Musique (which was broadcast to France), the Queensland Multicultural Festival, Music by the Sea and Brisbane City Council events, and receive regular radio airplay in Australia, the BBC in the UK and worldwide.

They have recently released their debut album 'A Breath Away from Shadow', awarded four out of five stars by the Courier-Mail, and five stars by iTunes.

"The songwriting is remarkable for its range and diversity, and displays a maturity and self possession that is rare and quite beautiful." The Folk Rag, 2009

Súnas consists of:

- Sarah Calderwood (lead vocals, flutes and whistles)
- Mannie McAllister (bouzouki, mandolin and vocals)
- Paul Brandon (guitar, bodhrán and vocals)
